"California Dreaming" by C. Michelle Olson; <http://www.cmichelleolson.com/Home.html>

From the Editorial Staff at The Write Place At the Write Time:

We are an on-line literary magazine published three times a year whose mission is to move our readers with fiction, personal non-fiction and poetry that speaks deeply to the heart and mind. We have a humanitarian approach to the arts, giving a personalized touch to the literary experience. This publication includes not only fiction, "Our Stories" non-fiction, poetry, writer resources, book reviews, original photos and artwork, but also interviews with best-selling authors and creative professionals who utilize writing in their craft. Our writers range from previously unpublished to having written for Newsweek, The Wall Street Journal, Time magazine, Glimmer Train, The Southern Review, Georgetown Review, Worcester Review, Gettysburg Review and Random House. We encourage the atmosphere of a warm, welcoming writing community.

Submission guidelines: Most fiction genres, personal essay and poetry considered, however, no erotica, no political content, no juvenile stories at present, and no explicit or needless violence. In short, tell a story that leaves a powerful, lingering impression in the reader's mind whether through three-dimensional characters, plot arch, voice or a combination thereof, but please avoid sending us anything so disturbing that it keeps us up at night. Use sound literary judgment.

For fiction: We consider up to three short fiction pieces per writer, per issue. Individual works should not typically exceed 3,500 words, however, if necessary for plot, we will consider rare exceptions.

For poetry: We consider up to five poems per writer, per issue. Individual poems should not exceed thirty lines, however, if we feel the strength of the poem merits added length, we are happy to consider exceptions.

For non-fiction: We consider up to three submissions per writer, per issue (max. 3,500 words for each individual piece- see above for philosophy on added length); our non-fiction section features personal essays done in a memoir-style. Capture a memory, a moment, a place, person or event that tells your story while speaking the universal language of the human experience.

For submissions: Please include a cover letter and the story in the body of the e-mail; please try to avoid using the tab button to indent paragraphs as it affects the electronic format. No attachments. The cover letter should include a brief author bio, word count, and a summary of the story. It should be sent to submissions@thewriteplaceatthewritetime.org. Accepts multiple submissions. No reprints (this includes work posted on personal websites/blogs/social media). No simultaneous submissions, please. Though the latter is discouraged, if a submission is simultaneous, please indicate that it is such when submitting; if we express an interest in publishing it, we require an e-mail stating that it has been withdrawn from the consideration of fellow publications as a courtesy to both us and the other publications.

For photos/artwork: Please send cover letter first to submissions@thewriteplaceatthewritetime.org. Jpeg (JPG) files if requested.

Terms: We are currently a free on-line magazine accessible to many readers so accepted writers can expect recognition and a good home for their work in terms of compensation. We acquire electronic, archive and one-time reprint rights. We require a basic written (e-mail) acknowledgment of our acquiring these rights upon the acceptance of your story/submission.
